If successful, we may look upon the rebellion as crushed; if again repulsed, there will be a delay until the United States armies can encircle and crush it out. It is the gravest contest that can take place, and should not be undertaken without the surest guarantee of snocess. Upon the eve of such a struggle it would be well for the purposes of the nation to be fully understood, that the fall effect of the victory may be understood. Minor questions sink before the mighty importance of the coming event.

With the defeat of the Potemao rebels comes the close of the war. Other ques tions, which have already bagun to agitate the people, will assume the foremost place. The maxim of inter arma leges silent will have to give place to the higher and graver question of what is to be done in the political condition of the country.

Parties in a Republican Government have been frequently deprecated. When they are parties formed upon a sectional lins, which mutually embitter one another, it is the gravest evil; but parties springing from a disagreement as to the best policy to be adopted, and not confined to a particular section, are of the highest good. The old Whig and Democratio parties were undoubtedly a benefit. It was only when they degenerated into sectional parties, having and was compelled to surrender. The spirit of economy is too deeply engrafied in the minds of the people to be rooted out, and a jealous regard for the right to control their own State governments, is a principle as common to Massachus s as South Carolina.

So long the war continues we may not expect any questions, as purely party questions, to arise. We hope to hear of mone, and will take part in none, as such. After-dinner speeches were magnified into PERMS OF DAILY DEMOCRAT TO THE authoritative declarations of the governments, and bitter distribes of the Times were received as the feeling of the British Government. The arming of Canada, and the busy preparations of war in England, were quite enough to give consistency to these reports.

If this success is to be ascribed to any ministration, though we think it was partly accidental, it is still mere due to the arrogance and presumption of the Southern Confederacy, Strange as it may seem, after the experience they have had, they are still impressed with the idea that "Cotton is King." They still believe all nations must submit to it.

With this condition of affairs, it becomes the duty of our Government to hasten to profit by it. It is highly important that the rebellion thus frowned upon abroad should be rapidly pursued and destroyed at home. Every delay is an injury, because it wastes backed by foreign sympathy. BY WM. W. FOEDICK.

We were very poor together, Mary;
A wee smail cot was mine.
Two cows alone were all thy dairy,
In happy days lang syne.
At morn, it was so happy then
To cread the mount and moor;
At eve, to clasp thee once again,
When we were very poor.

Of the castle on the hill was glowing Wite many a window bright,
And many a crystal cup was flowing
With rubs wine, by night;
But on the heath our little cot
Kat bidden, dark, and damp;
But I was happy with my lot.
For Mary was my lamp.

I have gained the golden geat and sorrow;
I've a world of wealth and woe,
But no eye awaits me on the morrow
Like the one I used to know.
Ohl give me back my wee wife,
My small cot on the moor,
For Joy has left me lone in ign
Eince we were very poor!

Latest from the Southeast. THE ARREST OF UNION MEN

[F.om the Richmond Examiner, March 3.] On Saturday night, Captain Goodwin, by order of the Government, proceeded with a party of select men to the farm of John Minor Botts, and took him, and all of his papers and private correspondence, in oustody. Leaving an officer in charge of the papers and house of Botts, Captain Goodwin brought him prisoner to this city, and

Captain Goodwin then went to the farms of Valentine Heckler and Franklin Stearns, and took both of these well-known Union men, and all of their papers and letters. and brought them to this city. Botts' and Heokler's letters and papers have not yet been examined. Stearns have undergone only a cursory examination. and so far, nothing of interest has been found among them, except several letters from his friend Botts, begging for money. We are under the impression that, as yet, the Government is in possession of no positive information that would convict Botts of treason. But he is known to be the recognized leader of all the disaffected—all the low Germans of the Red Republican, Carl Schurz school, and of the vile remnant of the Union Party.

Against Stearns' and Heckler's loyalty the Government has been for a month in the possession of the most conclusive evidence; and it feels confident of its ability to prove that both of these men have been loud in their denunciations of what they have been pleased to term the "Rebellion," and have, over and again, expressed their willingness to sacrifice their entire property to restore the dominion in the South of the United States Government.

Tho man Wardwell, another party arrested, has, since the beginning of the war, been known to every oitizen as a blatant and defiant Union man.

If the Government use its power wisely and firmly, this great Union party, on which Stearns and others like him have based such great expectations, will in a day dwindle into ridiculously small proportions. And not until a late hour in the evening was it known to be a fact that the parties were confined in MoDaniel's jail. Very soon after the information became generally diffused, a crowd collected in the vicinity and the matter was freely discussed. Not a man was there but expressed himself in unmeasured terms of approbation of the course of the Government. The only apprehension that seemed to be felt was, that the Government would not be thorough and together as many legislators as he summary enough in its treatment of traitors. We stated in our last paper that the Mayor had turned both parties over to the Confederate authorities. In this we were mistaken. The Mayor had merely committed them for further examination, and they were accordingly brought into Court on Saturday and again committed till this morning. The Examiner acknowledges that the Fed eral victories in Tennessee bring out a strong Union feeling in Richmond. It says: "We learn that a man want through this city Tuesday morning, trying to sell $60,000 worth of dry goods, still in Philadelphia, to be delivered in Richmond in ten days. Another is said to have gone up to a gentleman and slapping him on the back, said : 'Ah, ha! what do you think now? I thought you said we could not subjugate you.' no doubt many similar instances occurred which have not reached our ears.'

(From the Richmond Examiner, Feb. 28.1) It was observed yesterday morning that the walls in different parts of the city were sorawled over with inflammatory and trea sonable mottees. The oiroumstances at tracted but little attention at first, as the chalked letters were supposed to be the amusement of some idlers. On further examination, however, it was found that these mottoes were displayed all over the city, the town of Ennis, Ireland, where the great with a system and consistency that showed The rebels are hiring substitutes for tribune stood when he poured forth his that there were purpose and organization in this appeal to the multitude. Do not Burn the Cities. The Augusta (Ga.) Constitutionalist, in remonstrating against the policy of burning the cities of the South as the Federal army advances, savs :

"A captured city, for instance, may serve only as a temporary convenience to an ensmy, for the occupation of troops. If it be a strateglo point, he would hold it though The Rev. Mr. Lanbordt, the obaplain, its buildings were a heap of smouldering ruins. His tents would be pitched among the rubbish, or on the outskirts. No General would leave it because his troops did not have houses to live in. Nor would he keep his army in the best built city, on On the Dragon, which received a shot in account of its fine houses, if the plans of the campaign required them elsewhere, or if the position could not be held against a superior force moving to repossess it

In referring to a rumor that Savannah would be thus destroyed in case the enemy make good their attack, the writer

"We protest against it as unwise, as fruitlsss of any good result, as not calculated to be of any serious disadvantage to the enemy, while it would inflict a stupendous, permanent injury upon the people of the city and of the State. It would involve a destruction of buildings that otherwise might stand hundreds of years to beautify that fair city, and subserve the uses of her people for ages after the precent atracions set of Yankeo vandals have been ignominiously driven back to their Northern homes. To destroy the city under the presumption that it could never be won back, would be to act on an unmanly fear, and to imply a doubt of Southern prowess and courage.

AMUSEMENTS.

THEATER.-Mr. Couldock's performance of "Peter Problty," in "The Chimney Corner," has created quite a sation, the public justly regarding it as the very evre of artistic skill. It exhibits the very es sence of all srt—"the art of concealing art"—or rather that perfection of histrionic talent, that conveys to the anilior's mind nature and reality itself. We have seen the elder Kean and John Cooper in their palmiest days have listened time and sgain to Forrest; have been en trauced by Etlen Tree, Charlotte Cushman and Jean Pavenport, and yet never has our heart and brain, our sense and feeling been more completely under the control of the actor than amidst the agonizing scenes of poor Peter's misery. Time and time again we saw the ears trickling down the cheeks of the audience from sympathy with the play, and sobs and tears, mingled ith mirth and laughter, gave the true response to the efforts of the artist.

Let no man or woman who desires to witness the very highest efforts of a man of true genins, great culvation, and perfect artistic training fail to see Mr. Conidock in this part. He is well supported by Mrs. Laws, as "Patty," and Mr. Edwards in the role of the old man of ninety-one. HERBMANN POSITIVELY COMING.-Hermanu, the great est magician living, will give four performances at the fasonic Temple, on Wednesday, Thursday, Friday and Saturday, March 12th, 13th, 14th and 15th. This truly marvelons man has created the utmost astonishmen and wonder wherever he has appeared. He works entirely without the aid of mechanism, appearing upon the stage numpported by any convenient table to stand behind, or any of these adventitions aids that all other conjunors require. One of his most marvelous feats is to take two live rabbits, and, going directly among the ndlence, to rub them-"alive and kicking"-into one rabbit. It is related of him that, on one occasion in New York recently, he went into the market, and pick" man objecting to this, Herrmann took up the headless so rich, rare and racy, and our constitution be the same that he recently performed at the President tisi mansion at Washington, before Mr. Lincoln and family, the Cabinet, Gan-McCiellan, and the corps diplo-matic, and will also include a Grand Operatic Concert by the celebrated artistes from the Academy of Music, New York, Madame Rossile Herrmann, Siguor Amati Dubriel, and the celebrated trio, Messrs, Schreine

Further from Fortress Monroe

Sr. Louis, March 11 - The following is the official dispatch of Gen. Curtis: HEADQUARTERS ARMY OF THE SOUTH, WEST PEA RIDGE, ARK., March 9. General: On Thursday, the 6th inst., the enemy commenced an attack on my right, assailing and following the rear guard of a detachment under Sigel, to my mein lines on Sugar Creek Hollow, but oeased firing when he met my reinforcements at about 4 o'clock, P. M. During the night, I became convinced he had moved on so as to attack my right or rear. Therefore, early on the 7th, I ordered a change of front on my right, which, thus becoming my left, still rested on Sugar Creek Hollow. This brought my line across Pes Ridge, while my new right rested on the head of Cross Timber Hollow. which is the bed of B'g Sugar oreek. I also ordered an immediate advance of cavalry and light artillery, under Colonel Osterhaus, with orders to attack and break what I supposed would be the reinforced line of the enemy. This move-ment was in progress when the enemy at 11 in the morning commenced an attack on my right. The fight continued mainly at these points during the day, the enemy having gained a point hotly contested by Col. Carr at Cross Timber Hollow, but entirely repulsed with the fall of their commander, McCulloch, in the center by the forces under Col. Davis. The plan of attack on the centre was galiantly carried forward by Col. Osterhans, who was immediately sustained, and superceded by Col Davis' entire division, supported also by Sigel's ocmmand, which had remained till near the close of the day on the left. Col. Carr's division held the right under a galling and continuous fire all day. In the evening the filing having entire'y ceased on the center, and there having been none on the left, I reinforced the right by a port'on of the second division, under Asboth. Before day closed, I was convinced that the enemy had concentrated his main force on the right. I therefore commerced another ohange of front forward so as to face the enemy, where he had deployed on my light flank in strong position. The change had in progress, when at sunrise on the 8th, my right and center renewed the firing, which was immediately answered by the enemy

It was a matter of wonder with those who witnessed the conduct of these soldiers and by Messra. Wilson & Starbird, Louisville, Kenthat large numbers of women and children tnoky. were not seriously injured, if not killed. They would charge into the crowds at full speed, brandishing their swords or flourishing loaded pistols already cocked. It was painful to witness these exhibitions of recklessness on the part of men unused to the exercise of authority. We feel satisfied that such occduot would have been severely punished had it been brought to the atten tion of the commanding General.

A vigorous effort was made to get the provisions and other stores transferred to the railroad depot, and large numbers of wagons and citizens were impressed into the service. Every thing was confusion, and for the want of system, much remained undone that might have been accomplished.

There were many rumors afloat as to the whereabouts of the Federals, and many epeculations were indulged in as to their purposes At one time it was stated that General Buell had informed Gen. Johnston that he desired to fight him at Nashville, and that he would await his pleasure. To the question, "When will the Federals Seven Hundred Volunteers Sick in it was answered that General Buell had said that if General Johnston did not consider Nashville worth holding, he did not consider it worth taking. To the uninitiated it appeared that the City of Rocks was about to drop into an inglerious obscurity between the drop into an individual definition obscurity between the drop into the two armies. This delay of the Federals to take formal possession of Nashville gave time for the "scher second thought of the people," which Mr. Van Buren declared was "always right and never wrong," to dispel the panio which had seized them with such virulence on the Sunday previous, and when the Federals did ooms they excited none of that alarm which the bare mention of the name had conjured up but ten days previous. So much for delay.

The impression got out and prevailed pretty generally Friday morning that the No. 236 MARKETSTREET, goods and clothing in the Quartermaster's department, on the corner of Front street and the Public Square, would be distributed that day to the poor and needy. The in-tention, however, was, we believe, to distribute these stores to those who had been working for the Government, especially the women, and had not been paid for their services. The rumor attracted an immense crowd, and it was a motley one. Hundreds of voices would demand that the doors be DRESS GOODS, all kinds, thrown open and free access given to every. body. As the door would open for one or two of the beneficiaries to pass in or out, a rush would be made by the crowd, endangering life and limb. The efforts of the police and the military to preserve order were of no avail, and a serious riot was imminent. The Mayer appeared and appealed to the erowd to disperse, but his appeal was unheeded, and the impatience of the crowd was almost ready to break forth in the spirit

It was a critical moment, and luckily the Mayor bethought himself of an expedient which proved more effective than the bayhe ordered out the steam fire engine and eoon the muddy waters of the Cumberland were pouring down like an avalanche upon the excited populace. The effect was admirable—the crowd was dispersed and a disgraceful riot Plilmbing Establishment prevented.

The heavy rains of Monday, Wednesday, and Saturday had greatly interfered with the shipping of the army stores, and the washing away of two small bridges on the Nashville and Chattanooga Railroad, near the city, on Saturday evening, put a complete stop to the business.

A bright and beautiful morning was that of Sunday, the 23d. The city was remark. ably quiet, and only here and there could be seen a Confederate soldier. About nine o'cleck it was announced that the Federal pickets had made their appearance in Edgefield, on the opposite side of the river, and as the news spread through the city, a stream of human beings pourd down to where the suspension bridge once was, and then down to the "lower landing" to get a peep at the men who were regarded with a curiosity akin to that which a traveling menagerie excites. A squad of perhaps half a dozen cavalry rode down to the river and took possession of a steamboat which was being used as a ferry boat, and the captain was informed that he could not return to this side. Mayor Cheatham was sent for and he crossed the river in a skiff to meet the representatives of the grand army which was to take orphaned Nashville under its protection. After a brief interview, the Mayor returned and addressed the people assembled on the Public Square, informing them that he had just had an interview with the Captain of an Ohio cavalry company, who had authorized him to say that the property and rights of the people would be scrupulously protected. The people were well pleased with this assurance, but still they were grievously disappointed. They had expected when they were turned over to the ederale, that a General, attended by all the pomp and circumstance of glorious would come to receive them. s'ead, however, half a dozen cavalry had come to take the capital of the great State of Tennessee. Their idea of two weeks previous and the reality presented so striking a contrast as to wreath with a smile the lip of the most inveterate "rebel" who looked upon that picture. In the afternoon a Colonel of Ohio cavalry called at the river to pay his respects to the Mayor, and that courteous officer and obliging gentleman again crossed the swollen river in a skiff receive this second representative from the Federal army.

After a brief interview, the Mayor returned to the City Hall, and in a few words addressed to the expectant crowd, stated that he had been reassured that the property and rights of private citizens would be proteoted in the broadest sense; that the people ought to remain at home, as they would be permitted to pursue their ordinary avocations without molestation. The Mayor stated further that he had inquired, What of the negro question? and had received for reply that they came to re-establish the Union and to offer the protection guaranteed by the Constitution, and that in this spirit the property of every citizen, of whatever description, would be protected. In regard to the surrender of the city, the Colonci in formed the Mayor that a General would be here Monday or Tuesday, when formal military possession of the city would be taken and the terms made known. The assurance given in regard to the "nigger question" had a percentible question" had a perceptible influence in quieting the fears of some who anticipated trouble on that point. Monday, the 24th, the steamer C. E. Hillman, which had gone down to Dover on Friday, under a flag of truce, with a num. ber of surgeons of this city, to render such services as were needed by the wounded, returned with the surgeons, who had accom-plished their mission. They reported having passed a gunboat that morning, which they supposed would reach here Tuesday morning about nine o'clock. That was the first reliable intelligence we had that a gunboat was certainly coming to Nashville [TO BE CERTINUED.]

Sewing Machine Warranted the Best in the Market. ELMS HOW JR., & S. H. ROPER'S COMBINED PATENTS. Braight-Line Movements, Original Transverse Shuttle.

The great difficulty with all other old-style Machine The great difficulty with all other old-style Machines is too nuch constant adjustment, and such an amount of mechanical skill and ingenuity to nee them to advantage, as to render them of little comparative value.

But the Sewing Machines mannfactured by Greenmen 2 True are not liable to these objections, as any person, on even a moment's examination, will readily discover. They will do more and better work than any other Machine ever offered to the public, making the most beautiful lock-stitch, alike on both sides. Send for an off-hand specimen of sewing upon any material you wish, and you will then see how it is done.
